Assistant Superintendent Explains Philosophy

By Edward J. Cooney

MILLBURY - A half hour visit with Dr. Richard Palermo, Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Millbury, revealed a man of quiet confidence and enthusiasm for his new position.

Palermo was appointed in September to the newly created position of assistant superintendent. He was one of three candidates who vied for the position which was established after the departure of Curriculum Coordinator Dr. David Troughton.

A graduate of Boston English High School, Palermo has a bachelor's degree in economics from Boston College. After college, he taught economics for two years on a part time basis at Bryant Stratton College in Boston. "It was at that time I realized that education and teaching were areas I wanted to pursue," he said. He continued his education at Northeastern University where he received a Masters degree in Guidance and Counseling. His first position in a public school was as a teacher/counselor in Hanover, Massachusetts, where he remained for two years.

Palermo then took a position in the Needham Public Schools where he spent the first five years as a counselor then three years as an assistant principal in the Needham Middle School. As an administrator, Palermo said he found that his career goals were to be directed towards higher levels of administration.

He moved on to the Franklin Middle School in Franklin, Massachusetts where for four years he served as principal of a school with over 800 students. While in Franklin, Palermo returned to school to pursue his doctorate in educational administration at Boston University. He did this on a part time basis which, according to him, was a hectic two years of attending courses Friday nights and all day Saturday while still performing his regular duties as a Principal in Franklin. "Having the support of a wonderful wife and family was the key to everything," Palermo said, "especially working as a principal, attending courses, writing a dissertation for my doctorate. It was hectic and very stressful. It was during that time that I came to realize that I would want to move into a central office position because I wanted to work with a whole student population, that is, pre-kindergarten to grade 12."

Palermo said that the assistant superintendent's position in Millbury is an opportunity for him to pursue a career goal - working in a central office which hopefully will lead to a position as superintendent. "Seeing the total perspective of an entire school system is what was attractive," he said.

Palermo feels that he brings two strengths which can benefit the Millbury system. "Having a background in guidance and counseling is a strong foundation not only in understanding growth and development of children and issues of the family and community, but also in terms of being a good listener, especially in terms of running meetings. There is no book out there that says this is the only reading program, or this is the way to go," he explained. "There are many opinions out there. You have to be able to listen and then make decisions. That's a skill that's not just given; it's one that has to be developed. You have to be a good facilitator, by listening, by pulling people together for a consensus. It is very important to get people to recognize if there's a problem and then set them to own it, then buy into it and go with resolving it - especially anyone who is going to implement something, that is teachers."

Palermo said teachers have to first recognize an issue or a problem and then provide some input. "That is the key," he said. "You have to create enthusiasm and self interest. You have to be really sensitive to what is happening in the classroom; you have to be sensitive to what is really happening between a teacher and a student. We need to support teachers in that; being sensitive to what they are going through and give them support in allowing their input in decisions. I think it will pay dividends."

When asked how he perceived the Millbury School System 10 years from now, Palermo replied that any projections on where schools will be in the next ten years in Massachusetts will depend upon budgets and finances. "Millbury has some real strong roots that can be built upon," he said, "one being the involvement of parents and people in the community with the schools. It is a very strong foundation that has developed into something very positive. It's a real good sign. Certainly parents want the best for their children. Hopefully, they wouldn't let things slide because of budgets."

Palermo also said it will be necessary to keep teachers close to retirement motivated and excited at what they are doing. "That will be difficult and we will have to address that in contracts and in other ways," he explained.

The problems which the state's fiscal condition has created have not dampened Palermo's enthusiasm. "At the same time it is an exciting time in that if you have an ideal school, you could have a veteran staff and young exciting new staff with the old staff mentoring them along. Anything we can do to reach out to those teachers as they are maturing is something we will have to address. We are going to have to face that."

Palermo responded to a question concerning what effect budget and finances will have in achieving excellence for all schools. "The staff have to feel they are being fairly compensated," he said. "I would, for example, hate to see Millbury teachers paid the lowest in the Blackstone Valley. We all place a value on what we are compensated. I would want to make sure that that is acceptable. Teachers have to feel they have adequate supplies and materials to carry out a particular lesson. As for atmosphere and buildings, conditions are important and the teachers here in Millbury do an outstanding job in decorating their rooms and making the rooms a pleasant place to learn. Choices in relation to programs as part of the budget process have to be looked at. The school system and the community have to decide what is important and necessary for the kids. I also think you have to get a sense from the Finance Committee as to what is really realistic and available."

Palermo talked of the need for cooperation between the school system and other town agencies. "We also have to realize the school department is only one department in the town. You have to be able to work closely with the police and fire department and everyone else in getting a piece of that pie."

One way to do that, Palermo suggested, is to consider each school building as a cost center. "You have to look at the unique needs for each one of the schools so each principal can present a taste for what they need and why they need it."

With respect to the effect of the enrollment figures on the budget process, Palermo indicated that if enrollments decrease a little or stay the same, it is expected the budget would probably stay the same or be stable.

The warmest of Christmas cheer filled our hearts as we entered the circa 1820 farmhouse, the Clara Barton Birthplace Museum in North Oxford. Fresh greenery tucked into the most delightful places in a most imaginative way, the scent of pine, and good fellowship greeted us. We Millburyites have a certain affinity for Clara Barton since she taught school in West Millbury for a time. For its 1990 Christmas gathering, the Millbury Historical Society chose to participate in the museum's open house and Holiday Tea in celebration of the December 25th birthday of the founder of the American Red Cross.

Most of the objects in the dwelling belonged to the Barton family. Upon the wall in the music room, hangs a framed certificate of recognition received by "The Angel of the Battlefield" for her services during the Civil War. It is signed by President Lincoln. One of Clara's dresses is displayed in the birthing room where she was born, as well as a quilt given to her which is signed by Civil War officers and surgeons. The period furnishings in the Worcester room, a bedroom, were presented to the museum by Worcesterites.

In the dining room and kitchen area, every creature was stirring while visions of sugarplums danced before their eyes: a scrumptious array of Christmas cookies, pastries, mulled cider, and coffee. The pleasures of the afternoon concluded in the old buttery which serves as a gift shop.

Another Point of View

1991 - Better or Worse?

By Lawrence Moore

The first year of the new decade has gotten off to a bad start. The world, our nation, and the Commonwealth are faced with problems greater and more serious than a year ago.

Our economy is in a recession. Our people are in a depression. They are scared, uncertain and disturbed. Subconsciously, world events have shaken them. We've just gone through the worst holiday business season in recent memory, probably the most substantial indicator of the depth of the problem. All the people could tell you some of the reasons, some of the people could tell you all.

I started on some of my reasons and got caught up.

The recession could be the least of our problems. Recessions come and go ... or so they always have.

The Desert Shield or Desert Sword venture is composed of many sub-problems. Japan and Germany, for instance, are not performing as promised. Will Arabs fight Arabs? If we destroy Iraq, will Syria and Iran upset the balance in the area? What will Israel do? How costly in lives will a war be? Will we win? Remember how Iran and Iraq decimated themselves to a stalemate. What about our long supply line? Can we sacrifice the way Iraq did in its Iran war? Is the "not ready 'til February" statement a ploy?

Will Russia solve its problems short of ethnic hostility? How long will it be before the Russian economy and the economies of Eastern Europe are able to support ... and feed ... their people? Will Gorbachev live long enough to fulfill his promises to Russians and the world?

Environmental problems respect no borders. A Russian nuclear disaster affected thousands of square miles of Europe and Asia. Nuclear plants offshore are far more dangerous than Seabrook. Air pollution, acid rain, ozone depletion and the greenhouse effect are international, and efforts to stop these ravages of life are slow to start. Research into alternate energy sources hasn't gotten off the ground.

Third World problems abound. Progress has produced population growth, and now we can't feed the people. They die of hunger instead of disease.

Will AIDS become the "Black Plague" of the 21st century?

Has the United States reached its zenith? Are our twin deficits going to cure themselves? Will Japan and Germany, and how many others, produce what our research will devise. Can we exist as a "service" economy? Where will the energy we will need in 1996 come from? We aren't building plants because we don't know how to handle fossil or nuclear fuels. How long will it take to develop alternate sources? What will it take? Can industry do it alone or do we need a "national initiative" for energy.

Can our production colossus restructure itself to be competitive worldwide? Will labor cooperate? Will we learn to think "long-range"? Will our education system train ALL our people so they can be competitive with mechanical, technical and scientific foreigners? Will we need to import "brains"? How will we cope with the hungry, the homeless, the hopeless? What will we do about healthcare, water, air, food and shelter? Crime and drugs have given rise to our fastest growing industry: building jails! How will we integrate our minorities? How do we make our welfare population productive?

How will Weld change the "system"? Will we see the eventual benefits of "Question 3"? Can the power of Flaherty/Bulger control be tempered or broken? Will "efficiency and economy" ever get a chance? Will "limited terms" be on the 1992 ballot? Now that "no bank is too big to fail" will our New England banks remain viable? Has the real estate market hit bottom? Will we develop a more efficient system for health, the elderly, and the indigent? Will "resource recovery" and recycling solve our waste problems?

Enough already! The list goes on and on. Yes, it's easy to think of the questions .. but somebody has to be working on the answers ... for Massachusetts and for the United States. And, it seems to me, we haven't the sense, the desire, or the guts to do what's necessary to leave future generations a decent world in which to live.

How does 1991 look to you ... better or worse?

GSA and BSA Join Forces for Ecology

SUTTON - Troop 131 of the BSA and troops 663 and 674 of the GSA have joined forces to help combat excessive use of the local landfill in Sutton by building and monitoring a new recycling bin for cans and bottles. This new bin as well as future bins to be installed at key locations throughout the town, will help reduce the load of trash being dumped in the landfill and make better use of recyclable goods.

Dick Fisette, troop 131 committee chairman, explained that by putting these bins in locations that are convenient and frequented on a weekly basis by residents, the need to make special trips to redemption centers will be eliminated. In addition, this effort will provide an easy way for residents to become better at recycling. All the funds generated by this program will be used to help defray the cost of scouting activities.

Troops 131, 663, and 674 hope that all Sutton residents will use the New Year as a motivation to become more aware of the environment and help to save it by recycling.

Here & There Bits 'N Pieces

. . . by Joe Morin

Happy New Year, Friends...We hope and pray that this New Year in our lives will be a peaceful, productive and happy one for all. The only fly in the ointment to negate the above will be the action taken in the Gulf, either by Saddam or Pres Bush! January 15 is the deadline for some kind of stabilization in that area of war! God help us! I guess the question we must ask ourselves is: for what and for whom will this war be fought?

NOW ON THE lighter side....The word was out: "Don't tell Joe, whatever you do!" They knew about it as far away as Washington State, New York, Rhode Island, Florida, yes, even in Manchaug! They said that I was a "blabbermouth" and couldn't keep a secret...the nerve of 'em! The "surprise" was an 85th birthday party for the matriarch of the family, Mom! God Bless Her. Mom was taken by surprise at the gathering of friends and family, who showered on her flowers, gifts, but most of all their love and thanks to this great lady of ours! But thanks to sis, et al, who put it all together (and kept it from me), a wonderful party. This was the first time in 55 years that the family kept something from me (even PeeWee knew about it!). I congratulate them all! Mom, Happy Birthday! You're the greatest! Sis, you're o.k. too. But I'll getcha!

Well, folks, now that the song of the angels is stilled, the star of the sky is gone, the kings and princes are home, the shepherds are back with their flock, the work of Christmas really beings to find the lost, to heal the broken, to feed the hungry, to rebuild the nations, to bring peace among brothers of the world, to make music in the heart....Will we accept the challenge?

POPELINE AVAILABLE! We kid you not! A new 900 number features Pope Paul II's daily message. It costs $2.00 for the first minute. Ya gotta use every means available to spread the Word! Amen, brother!

40 MILLION IN REFUNDS!!! Hear that the IRS is trying to track down citizens who have about 40 million in refunds coming to 'em. They can't seem to find the recipients. Huh! They're not looking too hard, evidently. But if you owed them a couple of bucks, they'd find you! Fast!

VANDALISM...we are in complete agreement with those who favor attaching the future pay of those bird brains who desecrated the cemeteries recently. A slap on the wrist today doesn't mean a thing. A good kick where it hurts, attach their future pay to compensate for the damage, that's the order of the day. Enough is enough!

BASKETBALL sure is an amazing game. They pay a guy $500,000 a year to shoot the ball, and then they call it a free throw! Ridiculous! FUNERAL services will be held for the Patriots at a time and place to be announced shortly....CAMPING OUT TIME....They were camping out recently in front of the Red Sox ticket office to be first in line for the "treasured ducats," shooooot! Is that what they call "true love?" Optimists, the lot of 'em. A NEWSLETTER in town? Yupp, according to the papers, a newsletter produced by students and teachers at the high school will soon become a reality. Good idea! I would be very interested to see how it's put together. Maybe they could drop a few off at the town offices. T'ain't fair, though. They got Macs, I have a Packard Bell! Good luck, kids. Tell it like it is! ha-ha.

A GOVERNOR (and we won't name names) revealed how he judged his popularity: "When people wave at me, I count how many fingers they used!" (I like that one!) GHOST busters? Nope, "Lemon Busters!" Yupp, if you can't decide whether that "previously owned" car in the dealer's lot is a lemon, you call "Auto Critic" and have it dispatch a mobile inspection unit to check out the used car, van or truck in question. Costs around $40 bucks. It's not available around here, yet....SHOW ME a cowardly Washington Congressman and I'll show you a chicken of D.C....CAR INSURANCE to take another jump in '91. How much more can and will the people take? To top it off, those Bozo Esso Bees in Washington just got themselves another huge pay raise, even Dan Quayle! The guy doesn't do a damn thing, that we know of. Bush is spreading the dough around as if it grows on trees...yeah, our trees! People are starting to grumble, mad as hell....but what to do?

REALLY...WHEN WAS the last time we said, "Thank You" to our pastor, minister, rabbi, reverend, others involved in services to the town and community? The golden age leaders, the good people running the senior citizens centers in town, our police and fire department personnel, other services. They all provide a service, sometimes a God-sent service; this year, instead of criticizing this one or that one, let's not forget those magic words that could mean a lot: "Thank You So Very Much!"

JUST A THOUGHT! Isn't it more beneficial to be "over the hill" than under it? I'll drink to that!

ASK NOT for whom the bell tolls; let the answering machine get it....GUESS what's making a big comeback - no, not honest politicians, but the old fountain pen! Remember them way back in school, the wooden stem, the sharp point, dipping it into the recessed well in the desk? Ah! sweet memories! THE DUKE signed into law an enhanced emergency telephone system which will soon be put into effect. Ma Bell will install a system in police stations that will provide an electronic display detailing the address of any call to the 911 emergency number. How about that! No more phony calls, if you do they've really got your number this time!

WHAT A DIPSTICK - that Gloucester guy who was arrested for a break-in at MCI in Framingham. Do you believe that, a guy trying to break into a jail? Can't be too bright a person. He was sentenced to a year inside for trying to break in from the outside. Lord, have mercy!

"The day when America would play Atlas, and hold up the world - militarily, politically and financially, is over. We can no longer afford to finance all the adventures of our

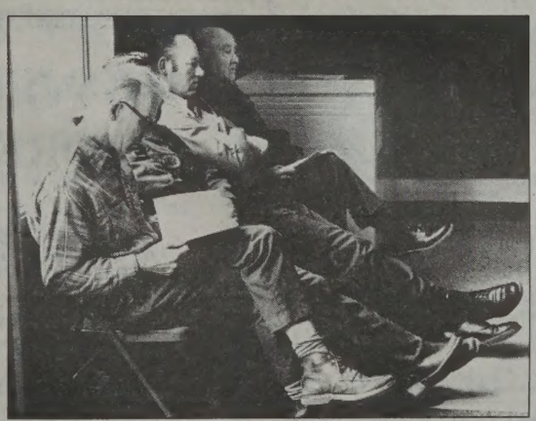
This is what it's really all about.



Local people waiting to vote on local issues that affect themselves and their neighbors.

Financial institutions face the same responsibility when they invest your deposits. They can invest locally — in loans to help their neighbors and local communities.

Or they can ship your deposits to another area — which doesn't help you or the local economy at all.

We're your independent community bank. We're locally owned and operated and we invest in you and your neighbors and in our local communities.

That's how we vote on the investment question. . .

globalists, all the domestic dreams of our home grown socialists. The debts are mounting too fast; the lenders are growing impatient. If Uncle Sam does not stop worrying about all his dependents around the world, and start looking out for No. 1, he is going to wind up a dependent himself." - Mr. Pat Buchanan (sock it to 'em Pat!)

DID YOU know that when our troops arrived over there in Saudi they were told to remove the American flag from their uniforms? It was also suggested that the flag not be flown! We didn't want to embarrass the Saudis! Bull! Bull! Evidently there was one heck of an outcry from a lot of people from the States; the order was soon suspended. Again, let's get 'em out of there and bring them back home where they belong! To hell with the oil prices, we'll make out, somehow. American lives are too precious. DARN IT! We are trying, in this New Year to get off this heavy stuff, but it's too darn important to ignore. Saddam! Get the hell back to Iraq where you belong!

PONY BOY...young Zack Toungate from Texas way was sentenced to "an alternative education setting"! Yupp, he was banished to a 10x13 foot isolation room in school for defying school rules. His crime, he's sporting a 6 inch long pony tail. But I guess, rules are rules. Sorry Zack, but don't feel bad, you should see the getups they're sporting around Massachusetts way. Why, I even saw a young girl with a ring in her nose. I kid you not!

ON THE BACK porch one very cold evening, we happened to look up, just mesmerized by the star diamonds glistening against the dark sky; the moon looking as if it were a giant whitish pearl placed there by the hands of God, which it was...knew there was something, somewhere describing this beautiful sight. Searched for a combination of star, beauty, wonders within my computer, and it came up with the following: "When I look at thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou hast established; what is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou dost care for him?" Psalm 8:3. To those who believe, no explanation is necessary.

HIGH FASHION MALL? Yupp, they're talking about a "high fashion mall complex" at 146 in the Millbury environs. That's funny. Who's going to support that concept? Throw in a Sears, Lechmere, Woolworth and a few good eatin' spots, that's all we need. the more "uppah crust" the store, the deeper we dig in our pockets! Let the caviar and champagne crowd go to Boston. Now folks, that's only my opinion.

SAY AGAIN? First it was meat, then milk, then fish, bacon, eggs, etc. Now a big discussion is going on in regards to the mercury fillings in our teeth or is it tooths? Some professionals are now saying that it is a "serious problem" and a lot of mouths are being set free of this alleged "poison." All this was brought out during a "60 Minutes" segment recently. What next?

THE OLDEST profession in the world, no, not the newspaper business, but the other one, you know the one I mean, is having problems in Holland; they want it legalized. Those involved in the business say no, too much paper work involved. But they would be eligible for small business loans (I like that)! Belong to the Better Business Bureau. Good grief! In some areas of Holland, special shopping centers are set up where one could walk down the street, look into the store windows and view who was on sale that particular night. And all this time I thought Holland was noted for windmills and wooden shoes! Mon Dieu!

WHAT A NERVE....an IRS spokesman first revealed that the more than 400,000 U.S. troops over in the Gulf must file their 1990 taxes on time. W-2 forms will be delivered to the troops; they will have until April 15 to return them. Do you believe that? The insensitivity of those birdbrains at the IRS? Again, an uproar by the people. The IRS Esso Bees have recanted and will give the troops extra time to file. Unbelievable! C'mon Bush, let's get the act together.

HAS THE Garden of Eden been found? According to Dr. Zuris Zarins of Missouri State University, the Garden of Eden lies beneath the waters of the Persian Gulf, just before arriving in Kuwait. How about that? T'ain't no Garden of Eden now. Saddam? Go home where you belong!

CRIME DOES PAY! In this case, get yourself arrested in New York City and you could be $150 to the good if you're kept in the slammer for a night without proper amenities. A judge ordered the city's correction's department to pay every suspect kept more than 24 hours in a slammer that rates below minimal standards. (It's got to be at least a three star slammer!) Ha-Ha!

Well, me friends, 'tis time to head for the hills. We take this opportunity to wish you all the best in the coming year; may all your problems be small(those we can handle); may you and your family enjoy much good health; God's love and blessings on each and everyone...

Dispute Arises Over Coaching Selection

By Edward J. Cooney

MILLBURY - The School Committee heralded in the New Year by returning to the traditional schedule of two meetings per month, as opposed to the one meeting they have been holding each month.

Student Representative

Ross Pease, student representative to the committee, reported that Whittel Communications has completed the installation of 28 TV monitors in homerooms to allow for a commercial news program, geared to teens, to be viewed during the homeroom period.

Pease said the program, which lasts 12 of the 15 minutes allotted to homeroom, for the most part was received pretty well by the students with some complaints that the program interferes with the completion of homework.

Committeeman Ed Wilczynski asked about the nature of the commercials on the news program. Pease said they are pegged towards teens on subjects such as food and movies.

Committeeman Alan Marble asked Superintendent Alfred Sylvia if the school committee could view one of the programs. Sylvia said he would look into getting a tape for the committee's review.

Nursery School Program

Sylvia introduced Sylvia Stepien, Home Economics Teacher and Joan Banks, teacher and director of the Nursery School Program at the high school. Stepien requested approval to file with the State for a program that would grant certification to students in a proposed two-year day care program at the high school. The program would involve course work and hands on experience with children in the high school nursery and off campus sites in the area.

Stepien said the program would be open only to juniors and seniors and would allow them to be employed directly in the day care field upon graduation rather than having to pursue a similar program after high school. She said the program will require students to complete 720 hours of course work and hands on experience to be certified. The program is similar to what is already being offered in vocational technical schools.

At present, 22 students have indicated an interest based upon a questionnaire given out to 10 homerooms. Stepien said the responses came from only 4 of the 10 homerooms. The remaining questionnaires were not returned by the deadline.

Stepien said the employment outlook indicates a need for day care workers. She also said the only expenses would be for texts and outside readings.

Banks, who runs the day time nursery at the high school, said that funds for books could come from the budget the nursery school generates from fees for children who attend the school.

Sylvia said he supports the program, saying it would be a "feather in our cap."

The committee unanimoulsy approved the request to file an application for approval from the state.

Coaching Positions

The committee then addressed an issue relating to the hiring of a varsity baseball coach to fill a position that has been vacant since the resignation of former Varsity Coach Robert Austin. Sylvia referred the issue to Athletic Director David Wilbur.

Wilbur said he had interviewed three candidates and was recommending Doug Stepien for the position. Stepien coaches at Worcester Vocational Technical High School. "I have a lot of mixed emotions," Wilbur said. "I picked the one with the most previous coaching experience. I know it is not all that popular. I have gotten phone calls. My decision was not based on personal feelings," he said.

The other two candidates were Nicholas DiCarlo and Butch Flamand. DiCarlo was hired this year as Varsity Soccer Coach. Flamand was an assistant to former coach Bob Austin.

Greg Pojani, President of the Millbury Basketball League, spoke up in favor of Flamand, saying he had a strong recommendation from Austin. He also noted that Flamand knows the system, having worked with Austin, and has shown a knowledge of the kids.

Pojani expressed concern that Flamand was not afforded the opportunity to move up after having put in a lot of hard work and energy over the past several years under Austin.

Two former baseball players who played under Austin and Flamand were also present. One spoke of Flamand's interest in the kids not only as a coach, but also as a person who showed concern with players' academic progress and who gave extra time to the players in a quiet way. He also asked for the committee's consideration of Flamand.

Sylvia said he supported Wilbur's choice and was recommending Stepien for the position.

Wilczynski said he had no personal knowledge of the candidates but has always been supportive of making appointments from within the system and especially in the case of someone who has been active in sports within the system.

Marble said all three appeared to be excellent candidates, but felt the committee should support Wilbur's recommendation since they hired him to make such decisions. "We have to put faith in Wilbur's good judgement," Marble said.

Committeewoman Jane Pojani said Wilbur's recommendation will be discouraging to people who put their time and energy in the system and will discourage further volunteers.

Hanratty said he strongly supports the hiring of the best person. "We have to rely on Wilbur's recommendation," he said. "They all have excellent records."

The committee voted 3-2 to hire Stepien, with Pojani and Wilczynski opposed.

Wilbur then recommended the appointment of Neil Lucey as assistant coach for boys track. Lucey was chosen over a field of six applicants. Only one candidate had any previous experience in coaching. Lucey has coached previously and was formerly employed in the Millbury school system. The committee approved his appointment unanimously.

The committee held up the Wilbur's recommended appointment of Nicholas DiCarlo to the JV baseball coach position at the request of Marble, who asked Wilbur to speak to Flamand to see if he would be interested in the position. Wilbur agreed to discuss the matter with Flamand.

Iowa Test

Sylvia gave a brief report on the results of the Iowa Test. He noted that he was pleased with the results of the math scores for the upper grades, but noted that at the elementary level math computation scores were weak. "I don't know the reason for it," he said. "If you look at the tests as a whole, there was an increase in scores over last year."

Hanratty asked if there was any evidence to show that teaching has been geared to the test. Sylvia replied that there really is not an alignment of the curriculum to that end, as yet.

Partnership

Sylvia reported that flyers are being sent home asking parents to join in a partnership with the schools to have their children read at least 20 minutes per day at home. Principal Frank Rogers at the Shaw School has reported a 50% commitment from parents at his school.

Assistant Superintendent Richard Palermo

Palermo said the only thing that could change a stable budget is if the school system were to take a radically different approach that would increase costs, such as implementing a longer school day, or year round schools which would increase the cost of education. "That's something more and more communities will be looking at in the near future," he said. "Millbury has wonderful facilities here. Does it make sense to close them down for two months? Are there other ways they can be utilized for the benefit of the kids?"

Palermo said he finds the Millbury School system, with respect to its size, ideal for him, as it allows him to become closely involved with the staff and schools on a daily basis. Further, he said, "I am sensitive and aware that when you come into an administrative position in the central office as an assistant superintendent, that there are people out there who will question do we really need the position? I am sensitive to that and impressed that there are those in the community who have welcomed me even when there are people being laid off. They could look at the position and say, 'We really don't need it.' I understand that. I don't take it personally. I respect that. When it comes to the bottom line when you're losing your job, certainly you look at those things."

Palermo, a Boston native, presently resides in Norwood with Jeannette, his wife, and his two sons, six year old Richard Jr. and three year old Andrew.

Research shows that the more time a student spends learning, the more the student will learn. Homework assignments extend the learning times. Below are some tips that students and parents can use to help complete library research homework assignments and create positive learning experiences.

Library Research Tips

PROBLEM	SOLUTION
Materials cannot be found that cover the homework assignment.	Ask any library staff member for assistance.
Students sometimes remember assignments inaccurately.	Ask teachers to put library assignments in writing.
The library cannot provide enough single copies of a single title for every student.	Find out if comparable titles can be substituted when an entire class is assigned the same book.
Overzealous parents often end up doing homework assignments for their children.	Allow students to work independently with your guidance and the help of the librarian. let the student explain their homework assignment to the librarian.
Entire books on a limited subject often do not exist or are not available from this library.	Use page or chapter references and articles from general and/or specialized encyclopedias.
Materials requested from other libraries may take a week or more to obtain.	Start assignments as-soon-as-possible to allow enough time for the library to retrieve materials from other libraries, if necessary.
Reference books cannot be checked out.	Use the copier to make copies for reference materials to use at home.
Research materials for college level assignments are generally beyond the scope of this library.	Use indexes and collections to start your college level work. The UNION LIST OF SERIALS will tell you where to obtain specific periodical titles that we do not carry.
There are no books on the recent turn of events now making news headlines.	Fast breaking news and "hot" topics are generally too new to be found in book form.
There's just one quick question to find the answer to before completing your assignment.	Call the library at 865-1181 for telephone information.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This week's "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records the votes of Representatives Richard Moore (D-Uxbridge) and Paul Kollios (D-Millbury) on late roll calls from the final 1990 formal sessions of the legislature.

SOLID WASTE (H 6386) - House 89-41, suspended rules to allow immediate consideration of the solid waste bill. The bill repeals a law passed in July prohibiting a facility from being located in a community on a site which is less than one-half mile from the border line of an abutting city or town. Suspension supporters said the bill should be acted upon immediately because it has been very difficult to site recycling facilities in the state. Opponents said the bill is a special interest measure for developers and charged it is being rushed through the legislature in a lame duck session. Moore voted against rule suspension. Kollios voted for rule suspension.

POSTPONE (H 6386) - House 111-23, refused to postpone action on the solid waste bill for two weeks. Postponement supporters said the delay will kill the bill which should not be rushed through the legislature without sufficient debate during a lame duck session. Opponents said the bill attempts to repeal a prohibition passed by the Senate at 3 a.m. in July and noted the prohibition has made it difficult to site any recycling facilities. Moore and Kollios voted for postponement.

BANKS (H 6299) - House 74-57, rejected a controversial 25 page bill changing the rules of the state's Central Fund which is designed to supplement the Federal Deposit Insurance System and insure bank depositors with more than $100,000 in participating banks. Some provisions of the complicated bill include making the fund voluntary; requiring banks which withdraw from the fund to keep their money in the pool for at least one year; and allowing directors to expel banks which act irresponsibly in their loan businesses. Supporters said this is a pro-consumer bill which will make major changes and ultimately help protect depositors. Some opponents said the bill will result in a shutdown of the Central Fund and will hurt consumers. Others said the legislature has not had time to read and understand this complicated 25 page bill. Moore and Kollios voted against the bill.

COURTS (H 6401) - House 79-49, approved an amendment to a bill giving the chief administrative justice of the trial court and the chief justice of the appeals court the power to shift funds between courts. The amendment would give the power to the House and Senate Ways and Means committees to approve or reject the transfer proposal within three days. Amendment supporters said this would allow the legislature to retain some oversight and control over the transfer of funds as the courts try to deal with the budget cuts. Opponents argued that the legislature should remove itself from the court system. Moore voted for the amendment giving the legislature approval power. Kollios voted against the amendment.

Homeowners Options for Massachusetts Elders

WEST BOYLSTON - Elder homeowners in central Massachusetts who are determined to remain in their home but are finding that their income just does not stretch far enough, will welcome the recent appointment of Margaret J. Sokolowski, Homeowner Options for Massachusetts Elders (HOME) Project Coordinator and Housing Counselor at the Central Massachusetts Agency on Aging.

The HOME program is a unique approach to helping elder homeowners of modest means to meet their housing and financial needs. Counseling assists elders in making informed housing decisions. Many elders faced with the need for a new roof, a new furnace or higher taxes, often think that selling their home is the only answer. While fixed incomes have not kept pace with inflation, houses have appreciated considerably. However, should they decide to move, other affordable housing is extremely scarce. Nearly all seniors would prefer to stay in their homes with familiar support systems and surroundings that they cherish.

HOME Housing Counselors visit elders in their homes, make them aware of a variety of resources and help them to match their needs to appropriate solutions.

Consumer protection is also a strong feature of the HOME project. Counselors try to help elders understand the many new home equity companies offering a bewildering array of proposals for homeowners.

HOME is a private, non-profit corporation with offices in Boston and Housing Counselors throughout the Commonwealth. Elders and elder advocates interested in the HOME Program can contact Sokolowski at the Central Mass. Agency on Aging, 360 West Boylston St., West Boylston, MA 01583 or call 852-5539 or 1-800-244-3032.

Windle Field Fees

Business Manager Sue Pierce reported that the Windle Field Advisory Committee has proposed changes in the fees for the use of the field. Last month, the committee approved a fee of $75 for adult groups, and $6.50 per hour for the use of lights at the field for both adult and youth groups. Youth groups were to be exempt from paying the field use fee only. Estimated receipts were $1400 per year.

Pierce said the new fee schedule being proposed would waive all fees for youth groups with adult groups being assessed a flat fee of $100 per team, for a total of $2300 estimated receipts or an increases of $900 over the previous proposal.

The committee took no action on reconsideration of the first proposal voted on in December. They did vote to approve Pierce's recommendation.

At the urging of Marble, the committee also approved a penalty of $50 for any group that leaves the field at night without shutting off the lights.

Correspondence

Pojani referred to a letter received from MTA President Tom Murray. She said she was not pleased with some of the remarks in the letter relative to "outside interference" from parents and the evaluation of teachers by others. She said one statement made by Murray would anger parents and discourage parents from coming to school to express their concerns and discuss things with a teacher. "I don't feel there is any need for this letter," Pojani said. The letter was never read aloud.

Hanratty said it was the prerogative of the school committee to take any exception it wishes to statements expressed by the MTA President.

Leasing

Pierce said that because of changes in the State's Procurement Law, towns and cities now have to ask for requests for proposals related to the leasing of school property as in the case of the Dorothy Manor School.

From My Window on Farnsworth Court

By "Pastor Rae" Cameron

Happy New Year! In preparation for my first sermon of 1991, I did some study of time. When I went into the Millbury-Sutton Chronicle office last week, I asked the Publisher, Alexander Belisle, "What is time?" Alec is a teacher of philosophy, and did I ever get the answers.

Time is the difference between points A and B. Infinite time is the speed of light. One philosopher said that everything was changing, and another said that nothing ever changes. So the turtle starts out first, but the hare can never catch him because the turtle is always changing. You understand, don't you? Well then, you are better than me. (Everyone who knows Alec understands you completely, Reverend - Ed.)

Let me put it somewhat in my simple terms. My Bible tells me that there is a time for everything and that God makes all things beautiful in His time. Jesus told us that He was both the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end.

The years may come and they may go, but the only way to live in the meantime is in the "now." "Behold now is the acceptable time, behold now is the day of salvation." "Boast not thyself of tomorrow for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

Day by day, step by step, moment by moment, and God invites us into His eternal life thru Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

P.S. If you want a dizzy experience, go watch the boys of the Millbury Basketball Team warm up in their new suits. Congratulations on their first four wins.
